My Happy Healthy Windy Chicago Life Game

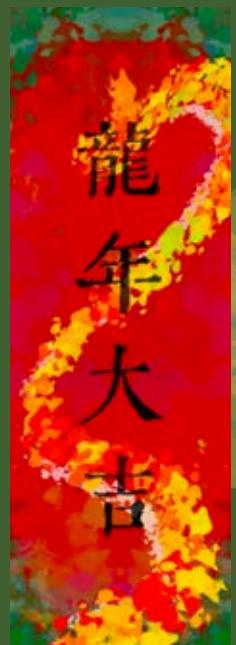

My Happy Healthy Windy Chicago Life is a one-player simulation card game. This game is about life and daily activities, based on my personal experience living in Chicago. The objective of this game is to survive and be healthy and happy. It is a small and seemingly simple goal but can be challenging to achieve, both in-game and in real life. It aims to make players have fun, while also allowing them to reflect on their own life through playing this simulated life experience.

Cut

2024

Designing laser-cut signs for a community arts club in a renovated historical church involves incorporating artistic elements that reflect the club's vibrant spirit to attract new members. Paired with legible yet expressive fonts that align with the club's identity. The project uses recycled cardboard and colored paper for sustainability, employing layered effects to enhance visual appeal.

Mille Bornes Cards Re-skin

A re-skin project for a classic racing card game — Mille Bornes. Introducing a new visual identity to the game to enhance the functionality, accessibility, and thematic connections without significantly altering gameplay.

By using bright color and modern design elements, the project emphasizes the road as a key background feature, highlighting the game's sense of progression and journey.
